Circuit Court NEXT WEEK

The October term of Circuit Court will convene next Tuesday at the Court House with Judge Guy E. Smith presiding. Judge Smith will meet with a small calendar this term as there are only eight cases to be disposed of. No doubt it will be a short session.

Following are the cases:

Criminal
The people vs. Robert Alexander, violation of the prohibition law.
The people vs. Carl Thurston, violation of the prohibition law.
The people vs. Fred Sawyer, violation of the prohibition law.
Jury Civil Cases
Hazen Keene vs. Theodore Callihan and Joseph Belski, trespass on the case.
John Malco vs. Charles H. Marker, trespass on the case.
Chancery Cases
The American State Bank vs. James E. Kellogg, foreclosure.
Lena M. Clothier vs. Ernest E. Clothier, divorce.
Louis Savage vs. Augusta Clahassey and Charles A. Worst, foreclosure.
The list of petit jurors drawn for this term are as follows:
George Wolf, Beaver Creek.
Jay Odell, Frederic.
E. G. Shaw, Grayling.
Charley Miller, Lovells.
Jay Skinner, Maple Forest.
Alvin M. Scott, South Branch.
Ernest John, Beaver Creek.
Albert Lewis, Frederic.
Daniel Hoelsi, Grayling.
A. R. Caid, Lovells.
William J. Bigham, Maple Forest.
Harry W. Saunders, Beaver Creek.
Martin Jagosh, Beaver Creek.
Norman Fisher, Frederic.
Peter Lovely, Grayling.
Alfred Nephew, Lovells.
Arthur Howse, Maple Forest.
Norton Williams, South Branch.
Samuel Dean, Beaver Creek.
Flora Barber, Frederic.
Clarence Brown, Grayling.
John Surday, Lovells.
Hemming Petersen, Maple Forest.
Russell A. Stevens, South Branch.

ENJOYED NATIONAL LEAGUE CONVENTION

Our party of five left Grayling on Monday, Sept. 24th, to attend the 27th annual convention of the Ladies' National League, which was held at Saginaw on Sept. 25th and 26th in Bancroft Hotel.

Mrs. Fern Feldhauser (who, let me say, drove her Whippet in a very able manner), Mrs. Pankow, our President, Mrs. Emma Knibbs, Mrs. Carrie Feldhauser (our chaperone) and Mrs. Florence Wakeley, our delegate, comprised the party. Mrs. Williams, National Picket, went by train.

Word of personal greeting from Governor Green to the Ladies' National League by Attorney General Brooker of Michigan who is a member of the National League of Sons of Veterans.

Camp Wagner No. 10 of Grayling was honored when Mrs. Bertha Williams a member of our camp was elected 2nd Vice President of the National Camp.

There was a large delegation of 63 voting members and nearly two hundred guests.

Carrin Sherman No. 1 of Saginaw gave us a bus ride around Saginaw with an announcer to tell us of the many interesting things. Among them the General Motors buildings and the new dock they are putting in, intending to bring nearly all the material they use by boat. Some fine parks and other things too numerous to mention.

We met Mrs. J. A. Holliday of Detroit, one of our former residents and a Past President of our lodge who is now on the Executive Board.

There was some fine degree work.

We had plenty of fun and a fine experience at the camp, and going and returning home.

Call For Debaters!

Mr. Hill, public speaking instructor, issued a call last Friday for candidates for a debating team. In an enthusiastic speech delivered to the high school, he stated the important facts concerning the art of debating. He also said that if the efforts to form a debating team at Grayling High are successful, trips are to be made to other schools to test our debating skill. We hope to compete in the state finals at Ann Arbor when the time arrives.

So come on, students, don't hold back! Try your skill at debating and let's see what a competitive debating team Grayling can produce! You're all good "arguers," at least, so show your stuff in a few good arguments for the team. Perhaps we may come out on top in the finals! Who knows?

Basket Ball

Prospects look bright for a winning team this year. Twenty-six men reported for practice when the call was issued, and at least twenty have reported at every practice. Among these are five letter men of last year, Brady, Wylie (Capt), Fenton, Stinchcomb, and Neal. Coach Cushman expects to put two teams in the field which are sure to supply the public with plenty of entertainment for this season.

New Fire Escape

The high school is equipped with a new fire escape which leads from the back of the assembly room and will empty the assembly room much quicker than the old way of marching down three flights of stairs. The fire escape is a tubular affair with trap doors at the top.

Monday noon Mr. Cushman gave the pupils the privilege of trying it out. When going down it, you experience the thrills of a chute-the chute of a modern carnival plus the fun of landing in the dirt at the bottom. Some of the more timid ones were afraid to try it, but we know they will have to in a real fire drill anyway. Those who have already tried it are anxiously waiting a fire drill. Lots of fun!!!

The Old Reliable orchestra is playing for the Student dance tomorrow night. We hope the floor will be filled most of the time. The orchestra has been practicing all this week and hopes to make the music satisfactory to all.

The girls' Basketball team has started practicing. We have a fast team so watch out, opponents.

A Student's Soliloquy

Well there, my geometry is all done and so is my history. Now I'll have time to sit here and enjoy the fire for a few minutes before I go to bed.

Wonder what I got in my English exam, hope it isn't anything lower than ninety and I'd like to get as much as Jo. Ever since we made our resolution to get a "B" average, I've had a hard time keeping up with him.

—he's like a whirlwind once he's started. I can't believe he is the same boy. Now last year he didn't have the least bit of interest in school and it showed on his report card. Now it doesn't seem as tho he's the same boy.

It's going to be a wonderful year, though, and the students are showing so much interest and High School spirit, that we just can't fail.

We fellows will have to pep up—can't afford to let the girls get ahead of us—but then we're all for the same school and the more victories only add to the glories of dear old G. H. S.

Ho hum! the fire has burned low and it's time to go to bed—got to be in shape to recite tomorrow.

The Classes (as seen by a Senior) Once when walking through the halls. These strange sights did meet my eye;

(It depends which class you are in Whether you will laugh or cry.)

First I saw the Seventh Grade Who had no desire to learn, They just sat making faces While for recess they did yearn

I went into the Eighth Grade room, What I saw there made me stare; Books and pencils and erasers Were seen sailing through the air.

The poor teacher tried to stop them But her view they could not see, And I hastened from the battle When they threw a book at me.

When I visited the Freshmen They sat there so very small, That I wondered what they would do, When they came out to play ball.

But they very quickly showed me; I lay sprawled upon the floor, For you see, the second bell rang And I was standing near the door.

Then I visited the Sophomores, They would sigh and sigh some more, Just as if they'd like to utter, "Oh, but life is such a bore."

Suddenly that bored look vanished, Gone for good that look of sorrow, For they heard the teacher say, "No assignment for tomorrow."

Now the Junior class I entered, They thought Juniors, so supreme, But I really must confess it, What I saw there was a scream.

There they sat with jaws all gaping Hearing poems of love and tears, But their vacant, staring glances Told of naught above the ears.

Then I stole in on the Seniors, Who came last, although not least, The erstwhile ruler of this school room I did my eyes upon them feast.

Listening to Mr. Bogue's wisdom, Steeped in knowledge, they're so wise That the very brightest of them, Seemed to really hurt my eyes.

Later, when I long had pondered, I, at last made this confession, That the class of '29 Is the best without exception.

A Plea For Our Teachers In the midst of all this agitation concerning the blue laws, it is surprising how little is said in defense of the school teachers, and how right as an American citizen to live her own life. In a number of communities the Public School teachers do not dare to call their souls their own—in school or outside. If she dresses too youthfully, if she has too many dates, if she walks home with a male member of the faculty, if she goes out too much, or in short, if her social conduct is at all out of the ordinary, she is subject to censure and dismissed at the expiring of her contract.

It seems to me that school boards in some places are trying their best to make our teachers inhuman, and for what end? She too is a human being like you or I. What your wishes to enter into a vocation which hampers her personal freedom? How blind those school boards are not to see and realize that a standardized teacher would be a bore to her pupils. We, the pupils of Grayling High School demand a human, a loving, living teacher, not a mechanical machine who doesn't call her name her own; and we are proud that the broad minded men of the school board in the city of Grayling place no such laws on our teachers.

Outlook bright for a good Basket Ball team.

Coach Cushman put his proteges through the first two practices on Monday and Wednesday nights in the hope of finding some prospects for his basketball squads. With a number of his last year's squad out, he is making rapid progress in practices.

In the scrimmages there were many bright lights, and some mistakes were made, but on the whole, for the first scrimmages the squad looked good.

High School Happenings Pauline Schoonover a Senior of '28 visited school last Thursday. Also Norval and Lacey Stephan, graduates of two years ago visited school Friday afternoon.

The Juniors and Seniors are preparing for the party which will be given next Friday. This is going to be something worth while and each person should begin the year right by being in attendance.

The French class is progressing rapidly and each student is already capable of counting to five. We don't know what would happen if Arthur May couldn't be with us as he surely keeps things in a lively humor. He seems to find it quite amusing to let some of the girls' sashes to their chairs. The result is—just wait and see them get up.

We have a new system in marking cards now so Mr. Bogue informed the Civics class.

The Junior boys said they were going to hold their meeting some night to elect their officers. Never mind boys, you had your chance last year and what happened? We didn't ever initiate the Freshies. Cooperate with us now, since this is our big year and watch G. H. S. swell with pride.

Grade Notes

2nd Grade

We have named our rows avenues, and we are trying to earn gold stars for our avenues by keeping them clean and quiet.

Our teacher read us the story of the Little Black and White Lamb. We liked it very much, so today we made a little book like it. We colored the cover like a picture in the book. We told our teacher what to write on the board for the story, then we copied it in our books.

3rd Grade

Twelve boys and girls were absent from our room Friday.

Phyllis Parker and Jerrine Peterson are out of school on account of the measles. We hope to have them with us again soon.

DON'T HUNT DUCKS AFTER 2 P. M. AT HOUGHTON LAKE

Lansing, Oct. 1.—By means of placards which have been posted in conspicuous places all around the adjacent territory, parties living on or near Houghton Lake have advertised the fact that they are not in favor of shooting ducks on this great inland body of water after two o'clock each day. The residents believe that if hunters leave the ducks alone in the afternoon that it will result in more ducks. With all the guns silenced for a certain period each day, the water fowl will have a chance to gain much needed rest and food.

Parties at the lake who have made a business of towing shooting parties out to the weed beds frequented by the ducks have agreed that all crafts used in this enterprise will leave the grounds at 2 o'clock and tow all their boats with them. Inasmuch as there are comparatively few private parties on the grounds, this decision means that the birds will be greatly benefited.

Sunday, October 7, 1928

At 10:30 a. m. the pastor will speak on the theme "My Cup Runneth Over." You will enjoy this devotional service. Special music by the choir.

At 11:45 a. m. the Church School meets. Closely graded lesson material will be used throughout the school, and all classes are to be supplied with permanent teachers.

Don't forget the "Big Brothers" class for men. The President of the class is Roy Holmberg, and a Secretary and Executive committee will be elected this Sunday. Mr. Schumann reviews a recent article in the American by Harry Emerson Fosdick. The subject for discussion will be "The American Family." Let not the men of the town be called "The Strays" but eliminate the "R" and call them "The Stays."

At 6:30 p. m. the League service under the leadership of Charles Hill. A snappy program for youth is being planned for this year.

At 7:30 p. m. the theme "Prayer for Saints as well as Sinners." Don't forget this most appropriate service of the day. It will strengthen you for the tasks that lie ahead.

The Uncommon Commonplace

The title is Quale's but the thought is applicable in many ways. How often we use the most commonplace of words or groups of words, and because we use them so often, we have lost sight of their meaning.

In a recent translation of the Bible the first word of the risen Christ "Hail" has been translated "Good Morning!" How suggestive such words are. For indeed it was the first fall dawn that ever rose on human life. For the grave of Jesus was the birthplace of the indestructible belief that death is vanquished and that there is life ETERNAL.

It was Good Morning for the high and low, for the extremes in estate and education. Sir James Simpson, the great scientist carves on the tomb of his little daughter "Nevertheless I Live," and the negro spiritual shows the faith of those humble slaves of old. We have heard their song putting the question "Who will be alive when I am dead?" and the answer comes back—

"Trees will be a-living and a-waving When I am dead. Birds will be a-living and a-singing When I am dead. But the song closes with a great shout—

"Who will be a-living When I am dead?"

I will I will!"

Let us say Good morning hereafter with new meaning.

DISCOURAGED WITH PRICES OF SPUDS

LOCAL MARKET IS 30c A BUSHEL; NOT MUCH HOPE HELD FOR HIGHER PRICES

Potatoes are now worth but 30 cents a bushel to the grower, and according to those who have studied the market for years, it does not look like the price will get much better this year, for not only was there a greatly increased acreage planted, but with few exceptions, the yields are much larger than in years, bringing a surplus on the market that will hold the price down, and even at that, make it hard for the growers to dispose of their entire crop.

Potatoes in Otsego county are not ready to dig except in a few instances. They are still green and growing, and there has not been a killing frost to help them along.

However, many are now digging, for the potatoes are getting too large for a ready market. The yield is going to be very large, and many farmers are selling their crop also which, due to the large yield will allow them a fair return for their crop, although leaving very little profit, if any, over the cost of producing.—Gaylord Herald-Times.

CUPID "UP-TO-DATE"

TO BE GIVEN BY WOMAN'S CLUB

"Cupid up-to-date" is the title of the musical comedy that will be presented on the evenings of October 23rd and 24th under auspices of the Woman's Club. The parts are taken by local talent and it is sure to please.

This interesting modern play is well worth studying, as well as seeing. It deals with the constant conflict between love and science, or materialism.

Cupid represents Love; and his constant helpers are Father Time and Common Sense. Senator Bing and John Scientist represent Materialism. Bully and Domestica are two modern people who haven't quite become adjusted to married life. Dolly Extreme is a modern girl of extreme type, as her name signifies. Will Steady, as one would judge by his name, is a likeable, dependable fellow. Corda and Freda are flappers; and Eddie and Freddie Jelly beans.

The choruses are very exceptional, with tuneful melodies, beautiful and unique costumes, and the dances range all the way from the graceful, stately waltz of minuet days to the Charleston.

When the play opens everyone is restless and nervous; always looking for something new, turning their thoughts altogether to latest scientific fads and discoveries, completely forgetting each other and Love.

Cupid becomes disgusted with the situation and leaves, much to the sorrow of Father Time and Common Sense. This leaves all the burdens of adjustment on these two, with the field open to Science. Father Time sets the clock up a hundred years and gives Bing and Scientist their chance.

By a scientific invention of Bing's they are all changed to the most ridiculous characters imaginable. But finally John Scientist returns from a trip to Mars with some star dust that stimulates the memory and carries them back a hundred years. They realize then that they have had an ugly dream of a purely scientific nature, and that they are ready for Cupid again.

The ever-generous Cupid is ready to come back as soon as he sees that they are willing to receive him. Therefore, he returns and gives to each one his gift of love. Happiness follows: At last Cupid is again enthroned openly in the hearts of each, and everything ends happily.

The Foot Ball season will open here next Friday. Grayling vs. Cheboygan. Turn out and see a lively game. The boys will give a social dancing party at the opera house in the evening.

Burt Chapple returned from Dansville, Ingham County, Saturday where he had been to attend the funeral of his mother, who was 89 years of age. She had lived on the farm where she died, about sixty years.

Hugh Oaks has completed the painting of R. Hanson's residence and it is called one of the best jobs in the town. It has certainly added greatly to the appearance of his already elegant home.

Archie Howse was in from his Maple Forest farm Saturday. He says his threshing machine has been running better than ever for five weeks and it is not through yet. Oats yield 40 to 65 bushels and wheat from 20 up. Poor country this.

A pumpkin pie social for the Gleaners was enjoyed by over seventy of the fraternity at the residence of Henry Moon in Beaver Creek, last week Wednesday evening. There was plenty of pie, and more fun.

We learn that S. A. Robinson lost his sawmill and shingles one day last week by fire. It caught in the shavings where they were conveyed to the boiler room from the planer. Loss estimated at $10,000, without insurance, unless carried by outside parties.

T. M. Odell of Beaver Creek had about three acres of millet on his

"worthless land", in sight of the Forestry reserve, which averaged six feet in height and was a perfect swamp of foliage. There is a bundle of it in our office which shows.

O. B. Scott, of South Branch thought it would pay to raise clover seen in Northern Michigan on the "worthless lands (?) in Crawford County and this season cut three and a quarter to see what it would do. It exceeded his most sanguine expectation, yielding 7 bushels to the acre. How is that for pine land.—Roscomon News.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jones started for their new home in Washington last Thursday morning. They came to Grayling from Chesaning in 1877. Mr. Jones engaging as head sawyer with Jas. Is Thirty the Love Deadline?

Ring Lardner was born in Illinois, Mich., in 1885, and attended Armour Institute of Technology at Chicago. After starting as a reporter on the South Bend Times, he became a sporting writer on the Chicago Inter Ocean, Chicago Examiner, Chicago Tribune, Boston American and Chicago American. Since 1919, his articles have been widely syndicated in newspapers throughout the United States. He first established his national reputation for humor with the famous "YOU KNOW ME, AL" series in the Saturday Evening Post. Since then there have been a series of books, magazine and short stories, securing him a position as one of America's leading humorists. Mr. Lardner is married, lives in Great Neck, L. I., and has four children, all boys.

By RING LARDNER
Professor Durant's pronouncement, which started this brawl, reminds me of the familiar story of the two Scotchmen, all named Sandy. It seems that one of them was walking along the main street of Glasgow without an umbrella in a driving rain storm. He was arrested by a balru (policeman) and locked up in the kiltie (jail). He sent for his friend Sandy.

"Well, Sandy," said Sandy, "wot be you all doin' in the kiltie?"
"Ah be here 'cause I'm in de rain w' no umbrella," said Sandy.
"But, mon, they canna put ye in jail for dot!" remonstrated Sandy.
"They canna, but they bae!" dreed Sandy.

A man, says Doctor Durant, cannot fall in love after the age of thirty. All right; he can't. But does he? I will recount a case which recently came under my personal observation and leave the answer to the jury that tried Remus.

George Gadget was a Junior at Grotton. It seemed kind of funny calling him a Junior, because he was seventy-three years old. He had been a student at Grotton for fifty-nine years. He wasn't as dumb as this sounds; he was merely economical. Staying there saved him the expense of going back to reunions. And besides, his instructor in spelling, who was a great hockey fan and loved to see Grotton win, kept dunking him so he couldn't graduate and leave the school without a capable goalie. Gadget had been on the varsity team for half a century and during the last twenty years of this period, none of Grotton's opponents had been able to shoot the puck through his beard for a goal.

Gadget had never gone with girls. He was looked on by his buddies as a misogynist. It was a great surprise to them, therefore, when he got up in reading class one morning and announced his engagement to Miss Hazel Tafteta of Laundrum, New Jersey.

Miss Tafteta was an alumna of Bryn Mawr where she had been a classmate of Jane Addams and Mrs. Whiffen. She was now eighty-one and Darmouth had just elected her Snow Queen of its winter carnival. In fulfillment of her duty in seeing that the snow was kept off the streets of college towns, she visited Grotton and met Gadget.

"Hello, girlie," said the latter.
"Hello, geevie," said Miss Tafteta. "I hear you are a misogynist."

"And I hear you are a confirmed spinster," retorted Gadget.
"Let's cellmate," suggested Miss Tafteta.

The pair thus began their acquaintance in a spirit of rivalry, but in less than a week their relations had lost all semblance of mere good fellowship and they were acting like two or more turtle doves. Gadget sent her candy, flowers, darning letters, new electric light bulbs, tooth paste and hair restorer. She sent him a patent beard hanger and spent an hour under his window every night, trying to tune a guitar, but most of the while she just sat out in front of the Elks hotel and languished, doing it so well that the school regents asked her to remain at Grotton as language teacher.

They were married and George asked her where she would like to go for a honeymoon. She inquired whether he had ever been at Niagara falls. He replied that he had been there when it was just a leak; in fact, he had telephoned the plumber about it. If the plumber had got there promptly, there wouldn't have been any trouble. Personally he would just as soon watch the water run in to the bathtub, but if she wanted to go there, he would pay her expenses and while she was gone, try to brush up in his spelling. He wanted to graduate now, and get out in the world and make his way.

George Gadget did not marry Hazel Tafteta for money. She had none. He did not marry her for social position. She had none. He did not marry her to obtain a housekeeper. He had no house. He did not marry her for her looks. She was terrible.

Was it love, or am I a fool?

Finding a Link
Since the name of George Rogers Clark, conqueror of the old Northwest, has sprung into prominence there are many who claim some distinction because of ownership of a thing Clark once owned, or touched, or because an ancestor fought with Clark, or because Clark camped one night near an ancestor's home. But the strangest, and not at all unusual of all claims, so the George Rogers Clark memorial commission says, is that of a number of persons who insist they are descendants of George Rogers Clark, when Clark lived and died a bachelor.

HANDICAPS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I have thought sometimes that maybe the mountains which loomed up as a barrier before the eyes of the first settlers in this country were a challenge rather than a discouragement as they pushed their way westward. At first beyond the Alleghenies, then, as the challenge flung itself into their faces still more arrogantly, to the Pacific coast. The thought of conquering the heights stirred their blood, fired their curiosity and their pride, became in time an adventure. So, too, I have been sure at times that what at first sight seemed a physical or a mental barrier to success has acted only as an incentive to greater effort on the part of the young person upon whom the handicap has been laid.

Four years ago I had a letter from a boy in a country town in southern Illinois. He was just graduating from high school and was hesitating about trying to go farther with his education. A nervous disease had seemed to put up for him an almost insuperable barrier. He walked with difficulty; his speech was halting and sometimes almost unintelligible; and he was sensitive as to his physical deficiencies. I had known another boy much like him, however, who had overcome his handicaps and had done well as a free lance writer, and I said so.

I met the boy a few weeks ago. He has graduated from a neighboring college, he has made honors, for him the handicap has proved only the challenge of the mountains which he has climbed.

A classmate of mine was almost blind. He could see objects only by getting his face close to them, yet he wanted to be a chemist. He went ahead as if there was nothing the matter. He used to go about the laboratory with the utmost nonchalance, sticking his face down into the mixtures which were brewing. He seemed never to have an explosion; nothing ever went wrong as far as we knew. He came to ignore the handicap, he received the degree of doctor of science in chemistry from an eastern institution, and is today one of the well-known commercial chemists of the country. Most people would have said at once that the thing which he accomplished was quite an impossible thing.

I had a letter from Ellis a few days ago. He has been blind from birth, but he has managed, without money and sightless as he is, to graduate from college, and now he has come up for an advanced degree and is going to teach in a recognized college. He is as cheerful as if he had his eyesight. One of the men who graduated from our college of engineering two years ago had been stone deaf since childhood. All the instruction he got was what he could pick up from reading the lips of his instructors. Yet he won honors in his engineering course; he was one of the most cheerful, happy boys whom I have ever known.

I sometimes think that a handicap is for many people a blessing in disguise.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Country Vs. City Air
Why is the country air purer than that in the city? Aside from dust, smoke and gases, city air is less pure because of the lack of foliage and because of the greater number of people. Foliage absorbs carbonic acid gas and gives back oxygen to the atmosphere. On the other hand human beings do just the opposite.

Word has been received of the death of Eugene Foster who was found dead Tuesday morning in his newspaper office in Gladwin. For many years Mr. Foster had been the editor of the Gladwin Record, and was one of the best known newspaper men in Northern Michigan. He represented the 28th senatorial district in the State legislature of about 1910, and also served as a member of the last state constitutional convention. He was associated in the newspaper business with his brother Isaac Foster. Mr. Foster, in his quiet, unassuming manner, gained a large circle of loyal friends in Northern Michigan, who feel in his passing away a distinct personal loss. He published a splendid newspaper, through which he accomplished distinguished community service. He had been in poor health for several years past to which he was unable to recover.

Mrs. Elna Hemmingson and daughter Doris left Wednesday morning for Seattle, Washington, where they will make their home with her sister Mrs. Lawrence Hedglund, who was formerly Miss Anna Nielsen. Mrs. Hemmingson's health has been quite poorly the past year and she goes West in an effort to regain it. Monday evening a farewell dinner was given at the home of her father, Wilhelm Nielsen Sr. with the immediate members of the family present. They included Wilhelm Nielsen Jr. and family, Carl and Otto Nielsen and their families and Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Hanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kendrick of Hot Springs, South Dakota arrived in Grayling Sunday to look after interests in the Nellie E. Palmer estate. They made the trip by auto in about three days, doing much of their traveling by night. They left Tuesday afternoon, going via Detroit and Chicago. It may be interesting to learn that Mr. Kendrick says that his state will go for Hoover in the election. This has been classed as one of the doubtful states but Mr. Kendrick says that the sentiment for Hoover has grown very substantially. Wa-Wa-Sum club on the AuSable.

FRANCE LAUNCHES LARGEST DESTROYER

According to information received from the Navy Recruiting Station at Detroit, Michigan, France has launched a new destroyer, the "Verdun," which is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. It displaces 2,600 tons and is to have a speed of 37 knots an hour, driven by engines that will develop 70,000 horsepower. The "Verdun" is the first one launched of the six authorized in the 1926 program. France has just completed a 1,500 ton destroyer for Poland. It is one of three being built in France for the Slavic Republic. England is also building three ships, flotilla leaders, for Argentina. The first of these, the "Mendoza" has been launched.

A Red Cross investigation disclosed more men injured in crossing the street than women. But men have so much more to distract their attention.

GOLF EXPLAINED IN HUMOROUS MANNER

UNIQUE EXPLANATION OF ANCIENT SPORT GIVEN

The following paragraphs were written by some unknown humorist and have been copied by many publications. Carl Mickelson brought a copy to the Avancement office as it appeared in the Mason News. It's good anyway, although rather hard to take for some golf enthusiasts.

Golf is a form of work made expensive enough for a man to enjoy it. It is physical and mental exertion made attractive by the fact that you have to dress for it in a $200,000 clubhouse.

Golf is what letter-carrying, ditch-digging, and carpet-beating would be if those three tasks had to be performed on the same hot afternoon in short pants and colored socks by gouty-looking gentlemen who require a different implement for every mood.

Golf is the simplest looking game in the world when you decide to take it up, and the toughest after you have been at it ten or twelve years. It is probably the only known game a man can play as long as a quarter of a century and then discover that it was too deep for him in the first place.

The game is played on carefully selected grass with little white balls and as many clubs as the player can afford. These little balls cost from 75c to $2.50, and it is possible to support a family of ten people (all adults) for five months on the money represented by the balls lost by some golfers in a single afternoon.

A golf course has eighteen holes, seventeen of which are unnecessary and put in to make the game harder. A "hole" is a tin cup in the center of a "green." A "green" is a small parcel of grass costing about $1.98 a blade and usually located between a brook and a couple of trees, or a lot of "unfinished excavation."

The idea is to get the golf ball from a given point into each of the eighteen cups in the fewest strokes and the greatest number of words.

The ball must not be thrown, pushed or carried. It must be propelled by about $200.00 worth of curious looking implements, especially designed to provoke the owner.

Each implement has a specific purpose and ultimately some golfers get to know what that purpose is. They are the exceptions.

After each hole has been completed the golfer counts his strokes. Then he subtracts six and says, "Made that in five. That's one above par. Shall we play for fifty cents on the next hole, too, Ed?"

After the final, or eighteenth hole, the golfer adds up his score and stops when he has reached eighty-seven. He then has a swim, a pint of gin, since "Sweet Adeline" with six or eight other liars, and calls it the end of a perfect day.

Choose designs for children's clothes with ironing in mind, whether you make the clothes yourself or buy them readymade. Pussy ruffles and queer-shaped parts take up the time of the laundress, and never look as well after washing and ironing as trim, smooth garments that are well-cut and made of interesting materials.

A scientist now estimates the age of the world as from 13 to 80 billion years. And what is the difference of a little thing like 67 billion years among friends?

NAVY TO BE INCREASED

According to a report from the Navy Recruiting Station at Detroit, Michigan, the Navy will increase the enlisted personnel to 100,000 men by July 1st, 1931, against the present complement of 82,350 men. This increase will be necessary in order to man the new cruisers. A marked shortage has been felt throughout the service since the commissioning of the new aircraft carriers, the combined crews of which, including aviation personnel, aggregate about 4,000 officers and enlisted men. The increase in officer personnel is figured to be $25. This increase will bring the Navy of the United States to a parity with that of Great Britain, the personnel of which is given as 96,000 enlisted men, exclusive of naval men serving with the royal flying corps.

ISLE ROYALES NATURAL BEAUTIES CANNOT BE IMAGINED

Those are the words of Walter Hastings, official wild life photographer of the department of conservation, who has just returned from a trip to Michigan's northern paradise. Mr. Hastings has been on the island more than once, but never, until last summer, was he able to see so much of its virgin forests and lakes in whose waters few paddles, if any, have ever dipped. His accounts of the wonders sound like fairy tales, but anyone who has ever met Hastings knows that he is a conservative individual who carries his proof, in the form of pictures, along with him.

"Imagine, if you can, a great forest in which there grow nothing but white birch," Hastings remarked. "I stumbled upon this unusual forest on one of my trips. The white birch ruled supreme. There was not another species of tree to be found within its confines. Some of the birches were 24 inches in diameter. Moss and partridge berry constituted the only undergrowth."

"Some idea of the fishing that exists on the island may be gathered from one of my experiences. We were crossing Siskiwitaw Lake, one of the several large lakes. We were using one of the two boats on the lake and as we started on our voyage, I noticed that a large trolling line and spoon had been left by some former occupants. I rigged up the line and expressed my intentions of catching some fish for dinner. I did not have any success on the way across, much to the amusement of the other members of the party."

"When we started the return trip, I again threw the line when I had gone only about six feet when I had a strike. I pulled in a beautiful pike weighing 10 pounds. Again I started to let out my line and once more it was taken. This fish, another pike, was a trifle smaller."

"But the real catch was still to be made, I had nearly enough fish for our rather large party, but I thought I had better make some allowance for the ravenous appetites that are aroused in that country. So I tossed the line overboard again. The ensuing strike almost pulled me off my feet. I thought that I had hooked the daddy of all fish. Of course the trolling line was a stout one and I hauled the battler in gradually, hand over hand. Eyes popped out when they saw suspended from the hooks a six pound speckled trout."

CONCENTRATION OF EFFORT NECESSARY FOR PERSONAL PROGRESS

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

We hear the statement made now and then that such and such a man has a "one-track mind." Whether such a characterization is intended as criticism or compliment, the fact remains that the power of concentration is a valuable possession.

Nothing worth while was ever accomplished without concentrated effort. This rule applies with special force in the administration of one's personal affairs. Those who scatter their efforts and give their time to all sorts of activities and enterprises are not apt to gain satisfactory results.

Observation in any community will show that those who are succeeding best in life are to a great extent men of single purpose. A study of the careers of the successful men of this or of any other country will bear testimony to the same truth.

This does not mean that there is any virtue in selfishness or in a narrow attitude toward life. Successful men keep themselves in a receptive mood to changing conditions in order that they may not get out of step with the marching feet of progress.

But it is lack of thrift—a sheer waste of time, effort, opportunity and money—not to have a single element of purpose or plan in life and bend every effort accordingly. It is always better to do one thing well than to do many things poorly. It requires will-power and strength of character to stick to a given purpose. It is the weakness—the potential failure—who follows over the line of least resistance, enthralling over one project today and casting it aside for another one tomorrow.

Of all the elements that constitute thrift, concentration is one of the most useful and necessary.

REMARKABLE OIL RECORD

According to the United States Department of Labor, gasoline was the cheapest commodity in general use last year. During 1927, as compared with 1913, the price of gasoline was but 11.4 per cent higher, while such items as house furnishings advanced 123.8 per cent, coal 100 per cent and meats 50 per cent.

The oil industry has made a remarkable record in meeting a tremendous, growing demand for its products with a steady, low priced supply. It has been able to do this by epochal progress in the matters of drilling, refining and marketing.

There is hardly a single element necessary to the production of oil that has not been appreciably improved in the past years.

The result has been economy and efficiency in public service that is outstanding even in this age of industrial miracles.

WHAT IS WRITTEN—IS THE LAW

By Erwin Greer
(President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

Of course you know that ignorance of the law is not accepted as an excuse for violating the law. It is your business to know the automobile code of your State and the municipal ordinances of your city. Not only that, but you are supposed to know the laws and ordinances of any State or city through which you may be driving.

Did you ever consider what the law says about the rights of pedestrians on the highway? Don't take it for granted that you have all the right of way and that it is up to the pedestrian to hop when you blow. You need only to bump into one such pedestrian to discover that he has a bound book of rights that you are bound to observe, and that you play safe only when you make sure the pedestrian sees or hears you. It is the law, not merely courtesy. It is the law.

It often is thought that the necessity for keeping to the right when you meet a vehicle, or passing it on the left when you overtake it, comprise a sort of unwritten law. Look in the law.

It is written, not unwritten. The law tells you where you belong on the road and where you stand if anything happens because you got into the wrong place.

Don't take chances by allowing members of the family too young by law to drive the car without being accompanied by a qualified adult. Don't allow guests or friends to take a chance. Investigate what your State law says and also what your insurance policies cover before letting anyone but yourself get behind the steering wheel. Don't violate the law or take chances just to be accommodated.

The wise motorist will write to the Secretary of State in any outside State in which he is to travel for a copy of that State's motor vehicle laws and familiarize himself with their important features, but first of all, he will get a copy of the law for his home State and find out what provisions are contained in that law which are not familiar to him. The best preventive of trouble is observance of the letter of the law, and the first step in this direction is to read the law.

The little trouble you save by that neglect will be of small account when compared with the trouble brought on by your neglect.

One disadvantage of the talking picture is that it makes it harder to sleep through a bum show.

ARE YOU A MOTOR VIGILANTE?

By Erwin Greer
(President Greer School of Electrical and Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

Hardly a day passes but that the headlines of our newspapers scream of lawlessness and thoughtlessness. Hardly a day passes but that scores of editorial writers dip their pen into the caustic ink and urge new reforms. And hardly a day passes but that often over-zealous, yet conscientious, aldermen or councilmen present to their fellow legislators increasingly stringent and awe-inspiring ordinances designed to protect the lives not only of pedestrians but of motorists as well.

Nothing—no psychological test or character analysis—will reveal true inwardness more quickly and with greater certainty than the automobile. And how it shows up the roaming inconsiderate who, enthroned behind the steering wheel and feeling an eager engine beneath his feet, comes inebriated with speed, poisoned with the mania of haste, stripped of the thin veneer of everyday courtesy and civilized conduct.

Think it over. How often have you observed the outrageous behavior of a driver, which made you say: "Somebody ought to report that fellow; a man like that should not be permitted to drive a car." But you didn't report him. We do not like the idea of playing the part of the informer—and so the driver goes on making the highway unsafe not only for pedestrians but also for motorists.

Are we, the 95 per cent of sane and safe motorists, going to see to it, ourselves, that a curb is put on the 5 per cent, so that we may remain in the enjoyment of what at present are our rights and privileges? Or do we want to wait until us, the innocents, together with the guilty?

In the early days of this country's history, when it became necessary to rid the community of undesirable elements, vigilantes saw to it that justice was sure and swift. The days of force have been superseded by an era of organized security in which the individual surrenders the lack of punishment to properly constituted authority.

Thus, what we need now is a body of modern vigilantes comprising the 95 per cent of decent, law-abiding, careful drivers, to work—through suitable laws, through persuasion and example, through reports, through volunteered testimony and in other ways toward the elimination of the unit.

If we fail to do these things somebody will soon do them for us and our motoring freedom will be over. Let's do it ourselves.
